The New England Organization for Human Services
Names Post University's Dr. Charles Kelly as New President

Waterbury, Conn. (April 7, 2011) – During its annual conference, the New England Organization for Human Services (NEOHS), regional branch of the National Organization for Human Services (NOHS), elected Charles Kelly, Ed. D., from Post University as its new President.

“Charles brings a depth of experience in the human services field, the expertise of an educator, and a heart for others that will make him an outstanding leader and representative for the organization,” said Bob Willey, outgoing President of NEOHS.

Dr. Kelly, Academic Program Manager for the Master of Human Services (MS-HSV) degree program at Post University, said he was honored to serve as NEOHS’ new President, and “eager to play an active role in our efforts to strengthen the community of human services.”

At the NEOHS conference, Dr. Kelly and one of the University’s MS-HSV graduates, Barbara Dublin, presented a program entitled “Down and Out in Waterbury: A View of Life on the Edge from an Inner-City Soup Kitchen.” The presentation raised awareness to the dramatic increase in the number of local residents struggling to put food on the table.

Dr. Kelly has more than 25 years experience in both administrative and clinical professional human services in a variety of community-based organizations. His client populations include the homeless, the chronically mentally ill, victims of sexual assault and domestic violence, substance abusers, suicidal individuals, the developmentally challenged and disabled, juvenile delinquents, and prison inmates.

Dr. Kelly has been a management consultant for several community-based human service agencies including the Bristol Adult Resource Center and the Bristol Community Organization. In addition, he was a trainer and consultant for Co-Opportunity, a developer of low-income cooperative housing projects in Connecticut. Dr. Kelly is also the former Chair of Education & Training for the Connecticut Certification Board.

The NEOHS serves a community outreach outlet for human services practitioners, educators, and students. It advocates for the profession of human services and encourages excellence through regional and national cooperation in networking, research, and career development.
